The History

Phillips Bay, a town with a deep sense of history, was established in 1645 by Captain John Bittle and other English immigrants who sought refuge and a life free of religious persecution that was sweeping England at the time. When Captain Bittle's ships arrived, the framework for a thriving local society was already in place laid down by indigenous people. Today, residents and the town's many visitors value Phillips Bay's emphasis on faith, hope, strong family values and a sense of community.

Eva J. Wigginton

Eva June, known as "Eva J," was one of Phillips Bay's most loved and influential citizens.

Through their enterprising, creative and philanthropic contributions, she and her husband Robert gave Phillips Bay much of the character and many of the landmarks that attract folks to the town today.

William S. Phillips

The same strengths that enabled Bill to help pioneer historical aviation print collecting—his landscapes, a reverence for time and place and human interest stories—have been capturing a ground swell of new followers for his nostalgic art. "Aviation was my first artistic love," he says, "but my true, enduring love remains my faith, home and family. It is my pleasure to combine it all in my ongoing series—Phillips Bay."
