

A MIXED BAG

BRALDT BRALDS

There's mystery behind a cat's eyes in the divinely inspired art of Braldt Bralds. His unique artistic talent has given us paintings that range from realistic, humorous portrayals of cats, to contemplative and detailed still lifes.

Born in the Netherlands, Braldt Bralds was very influenced by the works of the Dutch Masters. Brald's impressive portfolio spans across commercial and fine art. His many awards include the coveted Clio award, the Oscar of the advertising industry. In 1998, he was inducted into Holland's prestigious Illustrator's Hall of Fame.

Some of Bralds' most beloved works are his fanciful renditions of cats. In addition to the cats in A Mixed Bag, he's included what he calls a Dasch(hund) mouse ... or is that two mice?

HEART TO HEART

BRALDT BRALDS

Recently, Bralds has been exploring his views on relationships and romance through a series of remarkable “rock paintings”—natural stone images that intrinsically convey stories of love. Look at Heart to Heart and just try not to picture a couple you know ... or reflect on the affection and adversity that bind them tighter. We weren't at all surprised to learn that Heart to Heart was warmly received at Braldt's critically acclaimed one-man show at Santa Fe's prestigious Gerald Peters Gallery.

DIANE'S BROKEN HEART

BRALDT BRALDS

*The sea cast forth a heart of stone, divided but unbroken.
Hold on to love, it cries to us in words, unwrit, unspoken ...*

“Yes, this is a very new direction for me! And I am proud to say that my “stone portraits” were inspired by a letter I received from a dear friend.”

THE HEART WARMING

BRALDT BRALDS

“At day’s end, many insects will alight on a stone to absorb the sun’s lingering warmth. These are actual moths naturally camouflaged.” Braldt notes the beautiful striations in these stones, flowing in opposite yet complementary directions and the moths’ delicate, heart-shaped wings. The total effect is an intrinsic message of love ....

Kitty Litter

BRALDT BRALDS

This litter of nine lives is sleeping off a busy day spent gathering and assembling their own version of kitty litter. Painted to perfection by our fabled fashioner of felines, you will find among the colorful tissue and left-over packing peanuts an assortment of other items purr-loined from his previous puss paintings.

CATATONIC

BRALDT BRALDS

What could be more delicious than to relax in the countryside on a warm summer's day idly gazing at the clouds, turning them into pleasant images as you drift off to sleep? But whose daydream is this, anyway? Perhaps this goldfish is having dreams of a different nature, contemplating what's lurking out there on terra firma.

STILL LIFE WITH THREE EGGS AND FOUR PAIRS

BRALDT BRALDS

After a trip to the old country, our Dutch Master returned home inspired by the still life genre. "I wanted to create a painting in the old tradition with a dark, simple background to set off the quiet drama found in the subject matter. I've always loved the use of rustic, well-used objects with their rich patina. How could I not resist placing the newest member of my family, an Angora named Wee Will, into this setting?"

A Chorus Line

BRALDT BRALDS

“Together now! Left foot first. Look in the same direction ...” is what this chorus line’s choreographer must be thinking as he watches this performance. Look closely—furry faces are all facing forward and tails are graceful curved upwards but ... those 28 legs are anything but ‘in sync.’ Braldt pokes fun in a tongue-in-cheek way about the independent nature of cats.

BOUCAT

BRALDT BRALDS

While leafing through a book on Dutch master still lifes, it struck Braldt that in many parts of Europe—including his native Holland—“bouquet” is pronounced “booket.” Always on the prowl for puns, he leaped on the concept of Boucat. The glorious array of cats features a Burman, Oci, Somali, Blue British Shorthair, Red Maine Coon, and American Gray shorthair and a Snowshoe. We love the fun surprises like the inchworm, ladybug, mouse and butterfly, and can’t stop marveling over the incredible detail—you’d swear the droplets of dew would be wet to the touch.

SIX PACK

BRALDT BRALDS

Ordering through the mail can have its drawbacks. You never know in what shape your merchandise is going to arrive. Six items were ordered, yet only five have arrived. (Best do a recount). Asked about his inspiration for Six Pack, Braldt comments, "I've always had a chuckle about labeling packages 'Fragile.' It seems to insult the postal gods and invites a little revenge. But I like happy endings and the misadventure in this picture's story turns out okay."

TABLE MANNERS

BRALDT BRALDS

A mysterious 5 + 1 will appear next to Brald's signature on each limited edition print. What does it mean? You can find the outlines of five cat faces and a mouse in the floor of this feline work. Braldt once again perfectly and precisely captures the beauty of cats, their not-so-subtle mischievousness and adds a little hidden fun.

MISS KITTY

BRALDT BRALDS

Cats have a certain class and nobility—maybe you could call it a superiority complex. Miss Kitty’s self-assured stare seems to say, “Yes, I am the Queen of Sheba. Now run along and fetch me a fresh mouse or two, you simple little human.”

It’s also interesting to me how cats can be in repose, but even when lazing around in the sunshine, something is moving—like the constant flick of the tail. This lets you know that they are resting, but ready to run, to attack—if given the slightest reason. Miss Kitty is clearly at ease—but just try and take that flower away....”

RAINBOW WHISKERS

BRALDT BRALDS

Exciting news for feline fanciers! Artist Braldt Bralds has developed an entirely new breed of cat (felinus gottalooktwiceus) distinguished by its thunderous purr, obedient nature (not!) and multicolor whiskers. Actually, the real inspiration behind Rainbow Whiskers, Braldt tells us, came one day after his cats visited his studio. Wishing they were artists themselves, they jumped up on a table, dabbed their paws into his painter's palette and created a masterful mess. After the clean-up, Braldt resolved to add a little more color to his cats' lives—and ours!
