

what's that in dog beers . . .

WILL BULLAS

What do dogs, bars, beer and the well polished turn-of-phrase have in common? They are all beloved subjects of artist Will Bullas. Last call is fast approaching and maybe there's time for one more but how many is too many? Or "what's that in dog beers . . .?" This little guy looks done. Add some laughter to your home entertaining with this latest "wink" from Will Bullas.

toast of the Rhine . . .

WILL BULLAS

Will Bullas' enormously popular Food and Wine series is a playful tribute to the world of fine food and wine and the characters that inhabit it. He won Best of Show in 2007 from the Taster's Guild International Label Competition for his painting the wine king—yes, a lion, in a tux, with a glass of cabernet!—used on Chateau Lafayette Reneau's Roaring Red wine label. He has won the Past President's Medal for distinguished work in watercolor from the American Watercolor Society, as well as their Mario Cooper/Dale Meyers Medal.

...toast of the Rhine joins Will's previous Fine Art Editions on the subject, white wine and tails and Crabernet. The solemnity of the rhino may remind you of a stuffy sommelier but the blush in his cheek betrays this wine aficionado's essential modesty. toast of the Rhine... will make a delightful addition to your wine cellar, kitchen or office.

WILL BULLAS

The Daughters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul are known worldwide for their good works and unfortunately, for this would-be anonymous bar patron, they're also instantly recognizable. The cornette, or starched headdress, was an iconic part of the Daughters of Charity habit until the mid-1960s. Several years later, Sally Field's cornette-inspired antics as The Flying Nun ensured the habit's enduring place in pop culture history.

Will Bullas' bar scenes comprise some of his most legendary images. From Crabernet to the hare club... to the bar exam..., his colorful characters and punny titles make a cool and offbeat scene out of any basement bar, restaurant or kitchen wall. Bring home this new release today and make your home the hippest place in town, bar none!

A QUARTER TO THREE

WILL BULLAS

The city of San Francisco has much to commend it; in addition to being home to artist Will Bullas, it also boasts one of the most celebrated bars in history. Maxfield's Bar, so called for its extraordinary décor (The Pied Piper of Hamelin, a mural by Maxfield Parrish), has consistently been named one of the best bars in the country as well as the world. In addition to its spectacular barside view, Will Bullas' rendition of the famed watering hole offers a little something extra: service with a safari smile. These seasoned bartenders serve up a bit of San Francisco chic with every drink and will bring a cheerful, if unusual, touch to your bar, kitchen or restaurant.

WILL BULLAS

Once in a while, in today's serious, stressful world, it's important to stop, take a rest ... and find yourself face-to-face with the most endearing, enduring duck the world has ever known. Will Bullas' world-famous painting duck tape... is available as an Anniversary Edition Fine Art Giclée Canvas. The Greenwich Workshop is thrilled to offer this legendary monument to silliness at three times its original size—that's three times the fun, three times the absurdity and three times the laughs. The bigger duck tape... gets, the funnier it gets, but you'll have to see it to believe it.

Because our Greenwich Workshop Fine Art Anniversary Editions are produced on canvas, there's no need to hide them behind glass, which is ideal—nothing should come between you and your duck. This edition is sure to sell out quickly, so be sure to contact your preferred dealer to bring home some duck tape... of your very own today.

white wine and tails . . . is the latest offering from Will Bullas's "2007 Food and Wine" series. The successful series is a playful tribute to the world of fine wine and the characters that inhabit it and has included such favorites as Crabernet.

Bullas was inspired to paint white wine and tails . . . while watching Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers waxing eloquent on the subject of "white tie and tails." Eager to include his favorite food in a painting, Will and his wife "got some lobsters and posed one of them in the studio." Was it hard to paint a lobster? "He was easy to work with," says Will of his lobster model. "And then," recalls Bullas's wife Claudia, "we ate him."

The smirk of this tipsy crustacean, forever preserved, makes white wine and tails . . . a delightful addition to any wine cellar, kitchen or office.

Ca-nine (L. Caninus) 1: of or relating to dogs or the family (Canidea) including the canids.

Sa-pi-ens: of, relating to, or being recent man (Homo sapiens) as distinguished from various fossil men.

Ca-nine sa-pi-ens (fulla bullas): of or relating to a family of highly intelligent Canidea known to exist and thrive in a particular artist's studio in the San Francisco Bay area.

In the tradition of Nerd Dogs, Will once again visits the idea of the gifted canine sapien with Reading Lab. Many would argue that the breed exists far and wide and is not a subset but the norm. When one delves further into the wide range of Animalia that seem to inhabit Mr. Bullas' personal Galapagos, it goes with out saying that Darwin would certainly have cause to revisit his theories once again.

CRABERNET

“Wine is so very popular now and to say the least, chic. Not being very “chick” myself, I seldom fit into the normal box. This is how I feel about food and wine pairings: if the food you love to eat looks good with a certain wine, red or white, it doesn’t matter, it’s a perfect match,” says Bullas. “Besides, crab season was at its peak and all we had in the house was this very good cabernet. So you couple the two and end up with Crabernet.”

a pair of jacks. . .

“Have you ever walked in on a perfectly innocent card game?” asks artist Will Bullas, who has been tickling our funny bone with his wry sense of humor for about as far back as we can remember. “It’s like deer in headlights! Or ‘hare’ in the headlights, as the case may be. Just a friendly game between a pair of jacks—or jack rabbits in this case. Oh, and the carrot juice helps make it a healthy game, too.”

“Where else would you find lounge lizards?” Will asks about his latest canvas cocktail, the Lizard Lounge. “Certainly in a lush and tropical setting, tucked away in the jungles of the big city, that little hide-away where friends meet to relax and discuss the trappings of the day. As you walk through the door everything seems frozen with all eyes on you. Then there’s that slow blink of an eye and the party continues. You won’t find any bar-flies in this establishment either. We run a respectable joint here.”

THE HARE CLUB . . .

“the hare club... is my usual play on words, but this time I’ve added many martinis,” says artist Will Bullas. “These ‘hares’ seem to be in the middle of a nervous celebration, perhaps out-foxing a local hunter or celebrating the The Year of the Martini. At any rate, I cannot be held responsible for their behavior. I may join them – any excuse for a martini!”

The Year of the Martini . . .

“The Year of the Martini... comes hot on the heels of many The Year of ... paintings I have created,” says artist Will Bullas. “The Chinese astrological calendar has 12 great animals, one for each month and I painted all of them. The visual beauty of Chinese calligraphy has always intrigued me and adds a ‘mystique’ to the painting.

Only those familiar with Chinese calligraphy know this symbol is for ‘happiness,’ which usually accompanies a martini or two. I thought that the martini deserved some notoriety after a friend mixed his special recipe for me.”
