

KICKIN' UP DUST

JAN MARTIN MCGUIRE

“I enjoy painting pronghorn antelope because they are such unique animals,” says Jan Martin McGuire. “They’re not really antelope but are more related to a type of chamois found in the European Alps. They have exceedingly good eyesight and are the fastest land animals found in North America. I wanted to portray this antelope’s swiftness by angling him toward the viewer, almost off the page—before long, he’ll be gone in a cloud of dust!”
